Mrs. Annie Short, who lives on the weat side of the hall, said that about four weeks ago she noticed a peculiar odor coming from the rooms on the other side of the hall. She notified Mrs. Steck, the initress, and, with the aid of a pass-key, the women entered the rooms. Mrs. Hart says that in the dining-room they found three or four decomposed ovsters. Thinking that the odor came from the ovsters, the women threw them into the vard and went out.

About 11 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Steck says, Lynch called at the apartment, but could not get in. Then, Mrs. Steck says, Lynch called at the apartment, but could not get in. Inside the house the detective found Charles Terence, colored, twenty-six years old, of No. 353 Seventh avenue, and Charles Smith, forty years old, of No. 25 West Ninety-sixth street. The men were arrested, and Smith was charged with being the proprietor of the house. The police say that Smith is a fictitious name and that this man is the brother of "Honest John" Kelly.

A patrol wagon was sent for and the stuff confiscated was taken away. It included one roulette wheel and table, a faro layout and table, a poker table, a dozen chip racks, a faro counter, 450 faro markers, 4,600 chips, of the best kind, street diceboxes and dice, and various other gambling implements.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra started on the royal progress toward the city shortly after noon to-day. The rain, however, kept off and the temperature was sufficiently mild to make the day enjoyable. Outside Buckingham Palace, which naturally was one of the greatest centres of attraction, a great crowd had been in waiting for hours, watching the arrivals and departures and the forming-up of the procession. The brilliancy of the latter was greatly detracted from by the fact that all the

The great question discussed on all sides was whether the Princeton line would stand the aggressive attacks of the proteges of Morley and Weekes. Capt. Davis, of the Princeton team, was in a very hopeful disposition. He had confidence in the working powers of his team to withstand Columbia's attacks.

Morley, when seen this noon, expressed himself confident of victory by a better score than two years ago.

Many had to go hungry because of the push at all of the town restaurants, but there were few who could not be supplied with at least a sandwich or two from the army of imported "lunch dispensers."

It was rather late in the afternoon when the throng began to wend its way to the University Field, where the great contest comes off. Beautiful girls, attended by the ever-willing student, held sway over the groups as they chatted joyously of anything but football. Wagers were in general 5 to 4 or even on Princeton, and this showed the feeling which was abroad as to the comparative merits of the two teams.

The Columbia team arrived at 12,20 o'clock, and after a light lunch they were driven to the field.
